Barracks Row Main Street is thrilled to announce that the first panels of our long-awaited freeway mural have now been installed! Check out the photos below for images of the four center sections to the underpass component of the design. Later this month, this middle section will be flanked on both sides by two much larger panels, and later this spring, the portion that will run along the northern face of the freeway all the way from 8th Street down to 7th Street and on each supporting column will be completed. We're so excited to finally be able to beautify this space!
